UMBAU IN RESEARCH AND TEACHING

Eva Sollgruber , TU Graz
/ Adaptive Re-Use of Buildings from The 1960s and 1970s

Eva Sollgruber is an assistant professor at the Institute for Building Typology and Design at Graz University of Technology. After studying architecture at TU Graz and Aalto University Helsinki, she worked in various architectural offices in Graz as well as in Amsterdam. Since 2013 she has been working in design teaching and research. Her research includes historical investigations on the work of German architect Oswald Mathias Ungers and post-war modernism as well as design research with the focus on circularity, refurbishment and building typologies.
