

Call for Abstracts

Special Issue of the DOCOMOMO Journal
with working title:

ORIGINS OF MODERNITY – Dušan Grabrijan and Juraj Neidhardt

DOCOMOMO International is very happy to announce the Call for Abstracts for a special issue of the Docomomo Journal dedicated to the research, work and friendship of two extraordinary and important, yet internationally almost unknown, modernist architects from the region of former Yugoslavia, based in Sarajevo – Dušan Grabrijan and Juraj Neidhardt.

Dušan Grabrijan was Plečnik's student in Ljubljana and Juraj Neidhardt was student of Peter Behrens in Vienna and valued collaborator in Le Corbusier's Paris studio. Their Sarajevo living experience, dedicated to the study of Bosnian and Macedonian traditional architecture and ways of life, joint with the Plečnik's school as well as with the school of Peter Behrens and Le Corbusier, resulted in a special attitude towards modernity – marked by concern for human scale, geography and history.

Besides internationally renewed invited authors, this is an open call for academics with interest in the subject to collaborate to this very special issue of the Docomomo Journal with papers, essays, documentation issues, interviews, heritage in danger, tributes, conservation issues, technical issues, book reviews, case studies, digital models and documentations to the project. Besides the already mentioned influences (Plečnik, Behrens, Le Corbusier), we are specially looking for research papers about influences from Auguste Choisy, Alois Riegl and Adolf Loos.

This Docomomo Journal is guest edited by Assoc. Prof. Dr. Nataša Koselj from DOCOMOMO Slovenia and Dr. Mejrema Zatrić from DOCOMOMO Bosnia and Herzegovina. After double-blind peer review the contributions for this special issue will be selected by the guest editors in cooperation with the editorial team of the Docomomo Journal. The Docomomo Journal is Open Access and indexed by Scopus and DOAJ - Directory of Open Access Journals among others (www.docomomojournal.com).

Please upload 300 words Abstract and 100 words CV to the OJS system: <https://www.docomomojournal.com/index.php/journal/about/submissions> by the 31st of October 2022. The launch of this special issue of Docomomo Journal is scheduled for December 2023.
